VAN DYKE & HAUXHURST

Well Building Milwaukee

Sept. 16, 1926

Mr. Robert H. Neilson
C-o Wickes & Neilson
60 Broadway, N.Y.

My dear Hude:

I received your letter dated September 14th, and after studying your rough sketch I think that you are probably correct in your conclusion, but believe it advisable that you send me some sort of a road map in the near future, which I can show to the lady in question and see if she can trace on it the course which she took. While she may not remember how far she went going out she should remember her course coming back, and could perhaps mark on the map about where she was.

If this map was something like some of the Government topographical maps which show every farmhouse, it might be better because she might identify the entrance to some farmhouse.

I will make no charge for legal services in this matter and am only too glad to help you so far as I am able.

Some day I may trouble you with some little matter.

Of course, as you have read between the lines of my letters, I suspect that Mrs. Harding's story is not entirely accurate as I think it is possible that she may not have been going to the place she states, but was out riding with somebody else in the machine in which she states she was alone.

Very truly,

(SIGNED) DOUGLASS VAN DYKE
